Do you or does someone you know have a drug or alcohol problem?

The Addiction Resource Guide Alcohol/Drug/Gambling in Strathcona County offers a variety of programs and services from organizations to help those wanting to be free from addictions.

The Community Drug Strategy for Strathcona County Committee is made up of representatives from social and human services organizations who work together to address addiction issues. The committee currently consists of the following agencies:

- Alberta Health Services:
 - Addiction & Mental Health
 - Prevention & Health Promotion
 - Public Health
 - Home Living
- Chimo Youth Retreat Centre CSD
- Children's Services
- Elk Island Catholic Schools
- Elk Island Public Schools
- Hope in Strathcona
- Legislative Assembly MLA for Sherwood Park
- Moms Stop the Harm (MSTH)
- Parents Empowering Parents (PEP)
- RCMP
- RCMP - Victim Services
- Saffron Centre (Sexual Assault Centre)
- Salvation Army
- Sherwood Park Primary Care Network
- Strathcona County:
 - Communications
 - Emergency Services
 - Family & Community Services
- Strathcona County Library

Community Drug Strategy for Strathcona County

The purpose of this Strategy is to provide an evidence-base for a comprehensive, dynamic community conversation about our shared responses to key issues related to substance use in Strathcona County. It outlines an approach for actions needed to address the harmful effects of drug use in our community.

Our approach is guided by the Strathcona County Social Framework which reflects a shift in the way we think, behave and convene as organizations, community groups and individuals to address complex issues. The intent is that actions taken under this Strategy will contribute to the outcomes in the Social Framework:

1) affordability, 2) safety, 3) access to programs and services, and 4) connectedness and inclusion.

Our framework for action is based on four best-practice pillars: prevention, treatment, harm reduction and community inclusion & safety. Through these related and interconnected pillars, we will achieve tangible solutions to meet the needs of our community and those who struggle with substance use disorder.

The committee examined underlying structures and existing mental models that perpetuate substance use issues in Strathcona County. These include a litany of fear and stigma, an attitude that some people are worth more than others and that abstinence is the only solution.

There are social and systemic causes that include difficulty navigating systems, short-term solutions, siloed responses, and new treatments not being embraced. There are also cultural aspects and world views that drive the social and systemic causes which include public shaming, the view that substance use is a moral and criminal issue, and assumptions that substance use is associated with socioeconomic status, homeless or otherwise, and more likely to exist in the inner city.

Substance use exists within a complex setting that features multiple systems (e.g. health and social services), jurisdictional divisions, population characteristics and treatment approaches. Within this complex setting, human beings, communities, families, and ecosystems are all complex systems interacting in diverse and variable ways. This complexity often results in barriers for those working within systems as well as those trying to access the systems. It creates challenges for systems that have traditionally functioned in linear ways, focusing on single solutions without understanding communities as dynamic systems.

The committee was challenged to reshape the fundamental worldviews and assumptions that have driven our theories of addiction and subsequent actions for decades. What surfaced was a paradoxical shift in thinking, recognizing that while existing systems and interventions for addictions/substance use disorders are necessary, a new recipe for change is required if this community is to tackle the issue at its root. This implies a level of uncertainty, risks for new ventures, new skills and knowledge.

Our new mental model is based on collective ownership of the issue; that it is happening in our backyard. It is founded on a journey-based approach to address root causes and recognizes that recovery is at the individual, family and community levels. It is based on the understanding that addictions do not discriminate and that “the opposite of addiction is not sobriety – it is connection.” Research is showing that humans require social connection for optimal brain development and that the neural wiring developed in children cared for in a loving environment leads to increased emotional resilience in life.

Hari, Johann (2015). Chasing the Scream: The First and Last Days of the War on Drugs. New York: Bloomsbury Publishing.

FOUR-PILLARS APPROACH

The four-pillar approach to drug use was first implemented in a number of European countries in the 1990s, followed by several Canadian communities in 1997. This best-practice approach composed of prevention, treatment, harm reduction, and community inclusion and safety pillars supports a comprehensive and multi-system approach to addressing the issue.

The four pillars do not stand on their own rather they are closely related, inter-connected and grounded in the principles of the Social Framework. The double-helix image above reflects the crucial intertwining of the pillars to support the success of our collective efforts. At the core of the double helix, actions taken will consider the diversity of the community including the factors of sex and gender, race, ethnicity, religion, age, and mental and physical ability.

Implementing the four-pillar approach will require a shift from traditional programmatic responses and results to a systems approach which recognizes that all social organizations and the individuals within them are connected and form a complex whole. At a systems level, when contributing organizations work together to see beyond silos, they can identify areas for greater, system-wide, collective impact. These become leverage points to drive meaningful change.

Addiction Check List

Check off statements that are true for you or for someone you know.

- Your drug or alcohol use has increased since you first started using.
- You are having the same drug prescribed by more than one doctor.
- You need to take drugs or alcohol to help you through new situations or social occasions.
- You can't remember things you have said or done while using drugs or alcohol.
- You spend more and more time with people who use drugs or alcohol.
- You cover up or lie about your drug or alcohol use.
- You have problems or miss time at work/school because of your drug or alcohol use.
- You have relationship problems with your spouse/children/parents because of your drug or alcohol use.
- You only go to parties or places where drugs or alcohol are available.
- Your drug or alcohol use is causing financial problems.
- You have legal problems because of your drug or alcohol use.
- You have hurt yourself or someone else while under the influence of drugs or alcohol.
- You have tried to cut down or stop taking drugs or alcohol but couldn't.
- Your risk-taking behavior has increased (e.g. sharing needles, having unprotected sex).
- You break promises to others because of your drug or alcohol use.
- Someone has told you they are concerned about your drug or alcohol use.

The above are signs that may indicate you or someone you know has a drug or alcohol problem.

If you checked off any of these boxes, your drug or alcohol use is likely causing problems in your life. The more boxes checked off, the more serious the problem may be.

Addiction Services For Youth

Youth Addiction Treatment Services Edmonton Zone (includes Strathcona County)

12325 – 140 Street, Edmonton

www.albertahealthservices.ca

780-422-7383

Outpatient Services

This is the initial point of contact for youth and families seeking addiction services where initial intake assessment determines appropriate services. Services include: intake, assessment, individual & group counselling and referrals to other youth services and community agencies. Parents/guardians or other supportive adults are strongly encouraged to attend the intake assessment.

Family Counselling

Available to all family members connected to the youth who is experiencing issues with their substance use/gambling and can involve any one or all of the family members. Services are tailored to each family's needs. Treatment themes include: communication improvement, rebuilding trust, self-care, conflict resolution, and enhancing relationships.

Mobile Services LOCAL

Mobile counsellors provide intake, referral and counselling services to youth and their families at various community agencies such as schools, inner city facilities, shelters, justice sites and hospitals. A mobile counsellor is available in Sherwood Park.

Intensive Day Treatment

Six-week, continuous intake program provides individual, group and family counselling, a therapeutic recreation program and an education component. Youth explore how substance use has affected their lives and they learn tools to support them in making changes in their lives.

*Youth Addiction Treatment Services (continued)Prevention and Health Promotion

Prevention team builds on strengths and reduces risk factors to prevent the use of and reduce the harms associated with alcohol and other drugs. The team works with communities and agencies through engagement, consultation, collaboration, displays, community capacity building and committee work to raise public awareness around substance use and mental illness and to promote positive mental health outcomes.

Youth Residential, Stabilization & PChAD ProgramsResidential Stabilization

6-10 day, voluntary social detoxification program is available to youth 12 – 18 years old. The focus is on stabilizing the youth, completing a comprehensive assessment, constructing a treatment plan, and planning for transition to further services. Youth participate in individual, group, and family counselling. Access to available treatment beds can be accommodated within 24 hours of request.

Residential Treatment

Three-month voluntary program is for youth 12 – 18 years old, with harmful involvement in substance use that has resulted in significant impairment in several major life areas. Youth and their families are actively engaged in individual, group, leisure and family counselling. Youth participate in school onsite and positively access community based services as part of treatment.

Social isolation affects not only mental health but also life expectancy. The health impact of social isolation has been equated to smoking 15 cigarettes or consuming 6 alcoholic drinks a day.

Source: Holt-Lunstad et al. (2010) Social Relationships and Mortality Risk: A Meta-analytic Review. PLoS Medicine 7:7 (1-20).

Program helps youth under the age of 18 whose substance use has caused, or is likely to cause, significant physical, psychological or social harm to themselves or physical harm to others, and are refusing voluntary treatment. Legal guardians make an application to Family Court for a confinement or an apprehension and confinement order for a confinement period in a Protective Safe House for up to 10 days. Youth complete a comprehensive assessment and detailed recommendations for further voluntary addiction services are made by the treatment team. Guardians must attend a PChAD Pre-Application session prior to applying and family counselling services are an essential component of the treatment plan.
